

IT Developer

Zabai is an international e-learning platform provider based in Norway working in closely with different international donor agencies and NGO partners. We specialize in increasing accessibility to digital education through different software and hardware interventions. We are looking to expand our service platforms and expand into broader scopes with our platforms and are looking forwards to hiring two dynamic and self-motivated individuals who can take our vision further.

We are looking for two IT Developers whose primary responsibilities will be:

- Manage and maintain our server instances
- Develop and improve on our LMS services including our MOODLE instances
- Assist with and perform routine maintenance operations on the servers
- Develop deployment scripts and automation tooling for rapid deployment of instances
- Work closely with the product owner and perform the tasks assigned by the product owner

We believe the candidates should have the following qualifications to be most effective and contribute effectively to the team:

- Modern web platform knowledge (JS, TS, CSS3)
- Should be familiar with raw PHP Codebase (MOODLE experience preferred)
- Should be effective in both front-end and back-end development and should be flexible about either
- Proficiency with version control systems like GIT
- Familiar with both relational and non-relational database systems (PostgreSQL, MongoDB)
- Should have familiarity with python (django framework)
- Should have effective systems testing skills

Furthermore, we require the candidate to have the following personal traits to work effectively in the workplace:

- Self-motivated, structured and goal oriented
- Be a good team player
- Fluent English communication skills (verbal and written)
- Cultural Sensitivity and respect towards diverse cultures
- Be committed to adhere to the company's Code of Conduct

The job is part of our Global Exchange Program where you will be required to stay for one year in Oslo, Norway immediately after your joining. During your stay, you are expected to be open and respectful of diverse cultures and are expected to learn from as well as share your cultural views with the rest of the team. The job will be full time and will follow the local office timing of Norway.

All holidays and leave days will be based on the Norwegian standard office hours and practices during your stay in Norway.

What we are offering is:

- A chance to visit and stay in Norway for one year and learn about the Norwegian culture
- A good opportunity to develop yourself both personally and professionally by working with a diverse set of colleagues
- Working closely with an international startup and getting first-hand experience of international work
- Additional Benefits in accordance with NOREC guidelines

If you believe you have the skills and the mental temperament to handle the challenges, you're welcome to apply for the position by sending a cover letter and a recently updated resume featuring your skills and qualifications to the following email:
